

The Moral Depravity of Technology

In human history we are astounded with the leaps and bounds in advancing technology. The most notable of this trend is in the last three decades. With the advent of the Internet, adjacent technologies have exponentially advanced in ease of use as well as performance mostly due to the “hive mind” of the Internet. Many new technology standards are widely shared online ever improving the progression of more sound theories and refinement of materials leading to a constant upgrade to technical products, increase performance in computing power, and more defined software development.

This has led to the successful creation of Artificial Intelligence (AI) and the emergence of quantum computing utilizing quantum mechanics. AI is based on a neural network (the study of neurons of the animal brain) programmed with algorithms of statistics and probabilities known as machine learning to train the AI without actually programming it (machine learning has to be programmed by a human). Quantum Computing, in a nutshell, unlike Integrated Circuits of today utilizing 1's and 0's or power on/off, quantum computing utilizes quantum mechanics by using protons that share the same basis state of 1's and 0's (superposition), but instead of a bit like traditional computers these are called qubits in which the wave between states can be measured and manipulated. There are so many good scientific reads on quantum computing on the Internet, but be prepared to have to look up the definition of a word every few sentences, paragraphs, or pages depending on your background in science and technology. But the question remains from all the AI definitions. The term “consciousness” to describe how AI can learn and resolve problems is conveniently added to most of the definitions of AI yet the word “soul” is hardly ever used in the definition of “consciousness”. As stated above, machine language is programmed by humans to teach AI. Garbage In, Garbage Out, as we used to say.

As with any new or emerging technology humanity has not only found an area of benefit for society but, also the ability to hinder or control society. The psychological reasoning to hinder or control society has existed unchanged throughout our history. The quest for new technology is attributed to the personal or conspiratorial gains in the form of monetary value, political or corporate power, and the most disturbing the power over humanity, better known as Technocracy. The latter has been documented all too well and unfortunately been elevated to the biblical divination of evil. I hope I have your attention because my intention is to create a parallel between science/technology and theology.

Let us take a step back, in the Bible, Genesis 2, where God spoke upon Adam about the tree of knowledge of good and evil, and prior, the tree of life. I will refrain from documenting the evil symbolism throughout history, as well as politics, which I could easily cite. Rather, I would like to focus on the parallels of the Bible and technology while using two of the greatest minds in modern US history as a segue.

Nikola Tesla is remembered for wireless transmission of electricity as well as creating the Alternate Current (AC) generator which is in use to this day. While his work was sold for pennies on the dollar for profit, and lived a lonely life, he always spoke of the existence of God! His research and development can be attributed to radar, wireless and cellular technology, just to name a few. However, many of these technologies are also used for unspeakable purposes. “The gift of mental power comes from God, Divine Being, and if we concentrate our minds on that truth, we become in tune with this great power. My Mother had taught me to seek all truth in the Bible.” (Nikola Tesla).

Albert Einstein is famously attached to $E=MC^2$, harnessing the power of the atom leading to the creation of the atom bomb as well as his general theory of relativity. Einstein famously said “I know not with what weapons World War III will be fought, but World War IV will be fought with sticks and stones.”. String theory, which you may have heard in the past several decades, was used to parallel Einstein's theory of general relativity to quantum mechanics (remember AI above?). I wonder what he would have said today about AI? In his early life he spoke of quantum mechanics but obviously did not have the foresight of the dangers when he said, “Quantum mechanics is certainly imposing. But an inner voice tells me that this is not yet the real thing. The theory yields much, but it hardly brings us closer to the Old One’s secrets. I, in any case, am convinced that He does not play dice.” He is referring to God when he said “the Old One’s secrets”. So let’s take a step forward in quantum mechanics and talk about CERN the world’s largest hadron collider that has miles of magnetic tubes spanning two countries underground. Scientific researchers propel charged particles at almost the speed of light and measure the reactions when these particles collide. Out of this research they have been able to measure sub-atomic particles from the collision that lasts for an instance. These sub-atomic particles were called the “God Particle” as scientists believe this particle represents 96% of all matter in the universe. Later this was renamed to Higgs boson particle (boson was the old name of the sub-atomic particle), Peter Higgs, the physicist who theorized about the sub-atomic particle and the interaction with all mass. Since then, the name has taken a more nefarious term “Dark Matter”. To this day people have mixed views on CERN and the potential ramifications to humanity, some have theorized. Starting to see a pattern?

Let’s just throw out there what is being told by the elites and what the future has in store for us and/or what is currently happening. Obviously this is with or without their explicit knowledge under the guise of plausible deniability. The use and/or introduction of synthetic biology which is the manipulation of DNA utilizing CRISPR technology, mRNA gene therapy which has caused documented health issues, and the decades old GMO to mention a few. Given the later, the issues and cover-ups that were exposed with Monsanto’s GMO technology of food to be resistant to Glyphosate (Round UP!) should have everyone worried. Now Atrazine, a herbicide that is currently making its’ round that is causing serious implications to water sources. With the onslaught of lawsuits the company was quickly bought by the German company, Bayer. Then there is Oxitec, a British biotech firm that released genetically modified male mosquitoes in South Florida in 2021. Now there is warnings of mosquito borne diseases in the Southeast United States and Britain with a 50% mortality rate. So, why would you trust man to manipulate what God has not only created, but perfected? Ironically enough, stem cell research which had a promising future was deemed illegal in the United States. A couple of facts about stem cell research that you may not know. First, stem cell research presented great possibilities in the repair of spinal cord injuries and in some trials gave people a better quality of life. Next, the popular belief why stem cell research was terminated was that the only way to acquire stem cells was from the placentas of aborted babies. Not true, you can harvest your own stem cells from fatty tissues, run through a centrifuge, and saved for future therapy much like giving blood before a surgery. Simply put, stem cell therapy is natural. Let not your heart be troubled! Finally, do you know that fasting can release stem cells from your fatty tissue as soon as 72 hours? So once again we have to ponder upon what we have learned in this short journey. For example, fasting is mentioned in Mathew 17:21 and Mark 9:29 in the KJV of the bible. However, the NIV and NLT versions removed the information in their rendition of the bible. Mathew 17:21 is completely missing and Mark 9:29 has the word “fasting” removed. I challenge you to research this as I have. God has definitely given us tools for any situation in our lives!

So as we near the end, of this short read of course, I would like to briefly go over the next wave of technology that motivated me to write about The Moral Depravity of Technology. So with the advent of AI and quantum computing contributing to the advancements and growth in technology which most experts can hardly comprehend the complexities because of the staggering rate of information exponentially increasing in size and frequency during time. So we come to the term ‘trans-humanism’. The belief that man has the capability to live forever with the access to life extension technology which includes, but not limited to, regenerative capabilities, nanotechnology and the possibility to upload their consciousness to a computer or genetically grown humanoid. While this all sounds like Sci-Fi you can rest assure this is being researched and developed as you read this. Most of this technology has been perfected during the research and development of robots and experimental lab animals. Pick any decade from the past 80 years and mark my words, you will find evidence of such research. Robots have nearly mimic human and animal movement and in some circumstances have surpassed the physical performance of our biological friends, and some humans. They even carry loud speakers and bark commands at you (China), mounted guns (the removal of liability for murder) for your safety, knock your door in, and almost any dystopic idea you can imagine.

What’s in-store for us is implants to improve our physical quality of life to the extent that surpasses our belief. The blind will see, the deaf will hear, brain implants for those that suffer brain damage will be relieved, mental disabilities, your imagination is the limit. Currently, we can read about brain implants for the paralyzed to walk again, employees voluntarily having implants in their hand for security purposes, everyday individuals using it to buy goods and unlock their house, and basically anything else that your smartphone does except ‘you won’t have to carry nor loose it again’. Now that the pot has been sweeten with that selling point, it will be irresistible for those who are acquiescent and/or complacent in society and will gladly stand inline for the brain enhancement implant or a personal computer the size of a piece of rice to be injected in their hand. They will stand in long lines for hours or days to get the latest tech as we have seen in the past! Just like any computer with wireless connectivity it can be controlled and whoever controls the machines, controls humanity. Just do an Internet search on “implant hand security voluntary” and if your not very interested in the results or articles add “brain” to the search phrase. However, you will need to dig really hard as all search engines are controlled in some sort of facet. This will be combined with CBDC (Central Bank Digital Currency) to control your purchasing and more importantly, the introduction of the Social Credit score. The ability to remove you from the market place based on your ideology.

After all that I now welcome you to the number (mark) of the beast, best described in Revelations 13:16-17 KJV. Please spend a few seconds and refresh your self on these verses after you are done reading. It will make sense, I promise! If not, look at this world patent and a US congressional bill with 666 (see below);

So to quote Einstein, “What really interests me is whether God could have created the world any differently; in other words, whether the requirement of logical simplicity admits a margin of freedom.”. I can only imagine what Einstein would say about technology today...

GOD BLESS!
